A BRAVE WOMAN.

Mrs. Minnie Fox, the young wife of a worthless husband, who figured in a domestic tragedy on Madison avenue yesterday, is certainly a heroine in her way. When her idle, dissipated husher with a revolver in his hand, having previously threatened to shoot her, the woman's first thought was to protect the ten-month-old child to which she was nurse, and which she handed to a companion. Her next to fall on a stoop, face down, when she was struck in the arm by the would-be murderer's bullet and to feign death.

That saved her life. Her husband, helieving that he had killed her, put the next bullet to a good purpose by firing it into his own brain. He is dead and his young wife is only slightly hurt. Minnie was brave to leave a worthless husband and go out to service to support herself and her three-year-old boy, who is cared for by her mother. She child intrusted to her care her first face. She was brave and shrewd, too, when she feigned death to save her life, although she probably did not think of
